CHRISTIAN TSCHIDA

One of the living legends of Austrian wine, and indeed natural wine globally, Christian owns around 14 hectares of vineyards on both sides Lake Neusiedl, in Burgenland. Most consist of old vines from the early 19th Century, and have been in the family for four generations.

In an era of increasingly interventionist, tightly controlled winemaking, these wines speak to a 'Laissez-Faire' confidence. Christian's vertical press (the only technical tool he uses) imitates the pressure of a handshake, meaning that only the brightest and purest juice is used. The rest is spread back on the vines. In the cellar, large barrels ranging from 1000L to 3000L are used, for the ideal balance of freshness and maturation.

Christian's creativity and love for experimentation in viticulture is mirrored in his passion for art and label design (having trained as a graphic designer). In keeping with Christian's signature, beautiful bottlings, we have collaborated to release a one-off art-labelled Magnum bottling, found nowhere other than KOL: Hecatomb.

MARKUS ALTENBURGER

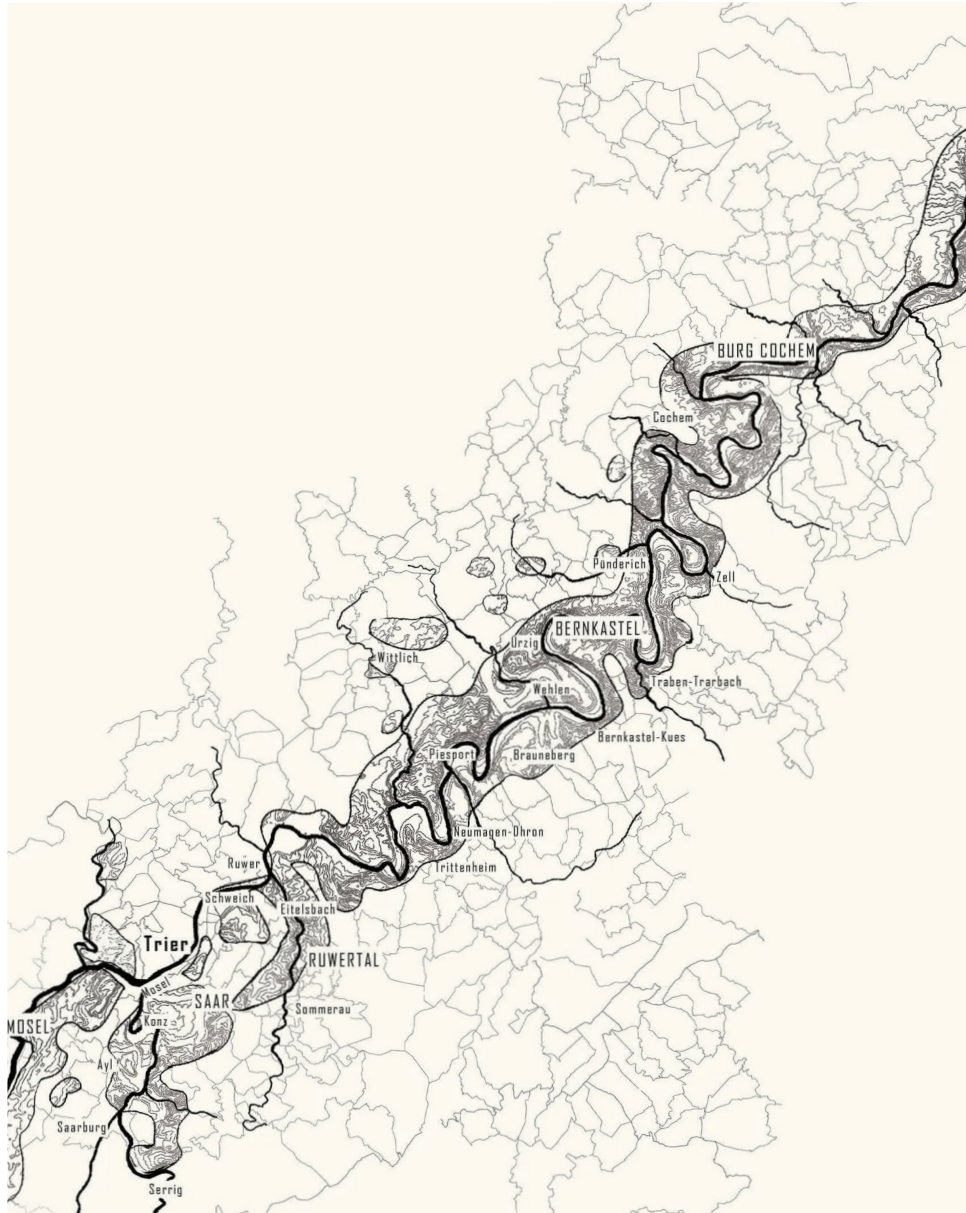

A few miles north of Christian's home in Illmitz sits the town of Jois, and the Leithaberg DAC. Here vines are planted on the limestone or schist bedrock of the Leitha mountains, which flow along the West bank of Lake Neusiedl towards the Hungarian border.

One of our great friends in the region (and a winemaker we had always hoped to work with) is Markus Altenburger. Markus epitomises the development of Austrian viticulture and winemaking over the last two decades - having taken over the estate in 2006 with his wife Bernadette.

Our second one-off collaboration comes from the Ladisberg single vineyard - first planted in the 1960s, and painstakingly restored by Markus in 2010 after decades of neglect. The vines sit in cool soil, with great water retention and a very high content of limestone. Fermentation takes place in concrete eggs, before ageing in an eleven hectolitre Stockinger Austrian Oak barrel for 14 months.

The label art is our final collaborative endeavour - an ear of corn, composed of the fingerprints of Markus, his family and the KOL team.

Just 500 bottles and 150 magnums were made.

AUSTRIA

Small and beautiful: perhaps the best way to describe Austria's winemaking countryside. The majority of the vineyards have long grown white grapes such as Grüner Veltliner, favouring elegant white wines with mouth-watering acidity and aromatic intensity.

In Niederösterreich, the Wachau offers a weighty, saline expression of Riesling, while Grüner from historic estates like Nikolaihof and Pichler stands amongst the finest wines in the world.

At the other end of the spectrum, Styria is the Wild West for Austrian winemaking. Unbound from tradition, the Styrian producers represented here - most part of Schmecke das Leben "taste the life" - are united by a collective vision: to provide a respectful and sustainable interaction with the earth and vines. Chardonnay (Morillon) and Sauvignon are wild, complex and savoury. These are some of the most complex and gastronomic wines anywhere in Europe.

GERMANY

Riesling is not necessarily sweet. With that out of the way:

German wine is predominantly produced in the west of the country, from vineyards located along the banks of the Rhine. While there is undoubtedly quality Chardonnay, Weißburgunder, and more to be found, here Riesling is King.

The Mosel offers the most classic expression, and is undoubtedly home to some of the finest estates in the World, with prices to match. Off-dry is the norm here - sugar is needed to balance acidity, and traditional estates care not for the modern demand for 'dry white wine'.

Moving along the Rhine to the Rheingau and Rheinhessen, slate gives way to limestone and fruit shifts to incredibly mineral, refreshing, often drier styles. Here names like Kuhn, Breuer, and Wittmann offer electric acidity and saline energy from some of the best historical sites in the country.

In the Nahe, Schäfer-Frohlich craft tense, knife-edge Riesling, particularly from the GG site Felseneck; flint, slate, herbs and mouthwatering acidity. The Pfalz offers the ripest, roundest styles from the warmest, most southerly region.

ITALY & SLOVENIA

Crossing the border from Veneto into Friuli-Venezia-Giulia, the plains give way to the Julian Alps; a land of lakes and pine forests in Italy's northeastern corner, flanked by Austria and Slovenia. Winemaking in this part of the world is traditional, and both sides of the Italo-Slovenian border are home to some of the best white and skin-contact wines in Europe.

The concentration of viticultural quality in Oslavje - started by legends like Stankjo Radikon and Josko Gravner in the 90s - rivals anything anywhere in Europe, barring perhaps Burgundy.

CENTRAL & EASTERN EUROPE

Aromatic varieties, bright acidity, energy; while countries like Austria, Germany and the Czech Republic are best known for white varieties, the reds offer light, less tannic styles as a result of both the climate and the indigenous grape varieties used.

For Pinot Noir, Baden shows delicate, bright fruit layered over limestone or basalt, while the high Alps of Valais boast some of the most stunning vineyards in the world. Burgenland offers the best expressions of Blaufränkisch, with sour cherry and structure. Varieties like St. Laurent and Zweigelt are found across the region, usually juicy and fragrant, an excellent match for spice.
